Notes for editors:

December 2009

Tacktick are world leaders in wireless marine electronics delivering an extensive range of wireless instruments that utilise an innovative Micronet technology, allowing the units to function entirely using solar power. Suunto is a leading designer and manufacturer of sports precision instruments for training, diving, marine and outdoor sports. Suunto and Tacktick have now joined forces to bring a stronger collective offering of products and services to the marine sector. The combined strength of Suunto and Tacktick's technologies will accelerate the development of new innovative marine products while also offering possibilities to expand the wireless Micronet, solar-power technologies into other areas of sports precision instruments.
